DOCTORNO Demogratic statistics are to be a feature of the great reform now on the boards.

Ir is not worth while to speculate on or discuss the cause of Mr. Nimmo's removal. He was removed in order to get his piece for a Democrat.

Tun chief official employment of the Democratic intellect in this era of reform is the invention of protexts for dismissing faithful and competent officials.

THE worst defect of the Democratic administration is that it is anti-democratic. For particulars see diplomatic and consular outfit of venerable aristo-

THE Philadelphia Times takes a wholesome view of the Angle-Russian question. It says that "when the true inwardness of this great crisis is written it will be seen that Granville by far-reaching diplomacy in securing allies and Gladstone by large and human statesmanship admitting the natural rights of a fee, and the empress of India by a strong and noble instinct for peaco have saved the world from what threatened to be the most unreasonable and fearful war of modern times." It strikes us that this is more. sensible and Christianlike than bowling at Gladstone because he has not rushed Europe into the flames of war.

THERE Is one point in the Cincinnati Enquirer's attack on the administration which cannot be kept too prominently before the public gaze. Referring to the foreign appointments of the State Department, the writer says: "More than half thus honored are men who do not believe in the common unity of their own government. They are its citizens because of the power of the government to prevent them from being Its aliens. They go abroad impregnated with ideas which

A Conservative View.

The Baltimore Son, which usually tries to be fair, takes a very different view of Mr. Gladstone's course from that of our esteemed morning contemporary-Son thinks that, inasmuch as the Crar has consented to submit to arbitration the question of the alleged violation by Gen. Komaroff on March 30 of the arrangement in respect to the debatand has further agreed to retire his outposts from their present advanced positions. and at once begin the work of delimitation, there is no good reason in sight why negotiations looking to a peaceable solution of all the questions at issue should not begin again where they were left off.

The Sea thinks the plan of settlement is approved in England, not as entirely satisfactory in itself, but as giving Eugland time to put her army and navy in good fighting order for the final struggle. Special attention is directed to the fact that the latter arm of the service is known to be in bad condition in several respects, and it will take three years to

There is one other great fact on which sufficient stress has not been laid by American writers in the Augio-Russian disturbances: It is that uo nation, and especially no European nation, can afford, under existing conditions, to accept the ast resort until every chance of honorable neare has been exhausted.

That Mr. Gladstone is capable of sacrifleing the honor of his country is not believed even by the most malignant of his tory critics.

It Cannot Be. Those northern Democrats who, a little more than twenty years ago, were rejoiced to hear of a confederate victory will waste their time and not improve their temper trust he has not -- they must not attempt | in rallying with the union veterans and trying to make themselves solid with the "soldier element."

A Democratic administration can give these men places of honor and emoluments, respect of true soldiers of the Union.

The United States Senste select committee on interstate contineree, of which Senstor Cultum, of Illinois, is chairman, has sent an important circular to all the presiding officers of state rational commissions, and other officials of this class in the various states and territories, giving an outline of the chief objects of the investigation with which that committee is charged, namely, "to obtain information that will be of practical value to Congress in framing legislation for the regulation of commerce between the several states." The general purpose of the investigation, says Senator Culton in his circular, is to assertain what substantial grounds of complaint now exist in any part of the United States as to the methods of operation of transportation companies now engaged in interstate commerce, and as to their relations with those who have dealing with them, and to what extent and in what their relations with those who have deallings with them, and to what extent and in what manner legislation by Congress can remove these grounds of complaint. This inquiry will involve the consideration of a number of incidental questions, which are briefly outlined in the circular. The committee says it will not be prepared to hold formal sessions to take testimony for several weeks yet, and it relations to Mr. Cullom in writing, prior to the Bath instant, their views in relation to the audject covered by the inquiries suggested.
